When is Ramanavami in 2018?

Ramanavami in 2018 is on the Sunday, 25th of Mar 2018

Ramanavami is on the 84th day of 2018. There are 281 days left in the year.

Ram Navami is an important festival for Hindu People. According to Hindu calendar, on the ninth day of Shukla Paksha of Chaitra month, Lord Rama was born in Ayodhya to King Dasharatha and Queen Kausalya. The birthday of Lord Rama is celebrated as the Rama Navami. It also marks the end of the ninth day of Chaitra Navaratri. Lord Sri Rama, born on the auspicious day of Ram Navami, is the seventh incarnation of Lord Vishnu. This festival is also known as Chaitra Masa Suklapaksha Navami or Shri Rama Navratra.

According to Hindu Calendar, Ram Navami is celebrated on the ninth day of the Chaitra month (during Shukla Paksha). Every year Rama Navami date is different because it is calculated according to Hindu calendar. On the day of Ram navami, devotees organize the Akhand Paath of Ramacharitamanas at home, perform many rituals like Havan, Rama Puja, and sing Bhajans and Kirtan. Many devotees visit to Ram temples and offer garland and Prasad there.

Ram Navami festival's rituals are performed in temples and houses. Icons of infant type of Lord Sri Rama are set in the supports, in the houses and temples by the devotees. People start the day and serenade vedic mantras offering products of the soil, blooms and sustenance things to Lord Sri Rama. Toward the evening, a coconut sheathed in a hooded shroud put in a support.
